

American Chemical Journal, Vol. 1: Edited With the Aid of Chemistry at Home and Abroa (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from American Chemical Journal, Vol. 1: Edited With the Aid of Chemistry at Home and Abroa In a letter addressed to Prof. Dana, printed in the American Journal of Science and Arts, and in another which appeared in the Berichte of the German Chemical Society, I have given a preliminary statement of my results in the study of the complex inorganic acids. The present notice is simply a report of further progress, and, like those which have already appeared, is to be regarded as provisional and subject to correction. I had proceeded but a little way in my investigations when I found it absolutely necessary to make a thorough study of the alkaline tungstates, which, as every chemist knows, are very numerous and varied in constitution. As the general result of my own study of the salts themselves and of the work of Scheiber, Marignac, Lotz, Forcher, Laurent, Lefort and other chemists who preceded me, I have arrived at a new classification and arrangement, which may be briefly stated as follows: There are two series of alkaline tungstates, the normal and the metatungstatic series.
