

Animal Peculiarity Volume 1 Part 3 (Animal Peculiarity Volume 1 Part 3)

In this book you will read of animal behaviour, animal facts, and animal pictures of amazing wild animals. For example african animals such as elephants, can differ from Indian elephants in their behaviour. All animals pictures have written content explaining the animal characteristics of that particular animal. Of course birds, and sea animals, and their behaviour, are also included in the animal peculiarity series of books. Rare animals, such as the octopus: Did you know that the octopus will eat one of its own tentacles if he can not find other food to eat? In time he will grow a new limb to replace the one he had eaten. Here are a few extracts of information in the Animal peculiarity series of books. [1].The Mare [Female horse] Mares are the only animals which when pregnant allow the male to have inter-course with them. For Mares are exceedingly lustful, and that is why strict censors call lecherous women mares. [2]. Hemlock If a man drinks Hemlock, he dies from the congealing and chilling of his blood, whereas a hog can gorge itself with Hemlock and remain in good health. [3].To encounter a Lion when famished is dangerous, but when he has eaten his fill he is extremely gentle; they even say that at that time he is playful. A Lion will never turn his back and flee, but withdraws, looking you straight in the face, and by degrees. [4].The Dog A Dogs skull has no suture. Running they say, makes a Dog more lustful. In old age a Dogs teeth are blunt and turn black. He is so keen-scented that he will never touch the roasted flesh of a dog, be it bewitched by the subtlest and craftiest of rich sauces. THERE is perhaps nothing extraordinary in the fact that man is wise and just, takes great care to provide for his own children, -shows due consideration for his parents, seeks sustenance for himself, protects himself against plots, and possesses all the other gifts of nature which are his. For man has been endowed with speech, of all things the most precious, and has been granted reason, which is of the greatest help and use. Moreover, he knows how to reverence and worship the gods. But that dumb animals should by nature possess some good quality and should have many of mans amazing excellences assigned to them along with man, is indeed a remarkable fact. And to know accurately the special characteristics of each, and how living creatures also have been a source of interest no less than man, demands a trained intelligence and much learning. Now I am well aware of the labour that others have expended on this subject, yet I have collected all the materials that I could; I have clothed them in untechnical language, and am persuaded that my achievement is a treasure far from negligible. So if anyone considers them profitable, let him make use of them; anyone who does not consider them so may give them to his father to keep and attend to. For not all things give pleasure to all men, nor do all men consider all subjects worthy of study. Although I was born later than many accomplished writers of an earlier day, the accident of date ought not to mulct me of praise, if I too produce a learned work whose ampler research and whose choice of language make it deserving of serious attention.
